The Brita Water Research Institute (BWRI) is pleased to present the President and Executive Director, Jennie Ward Robinson, Ph.D. Dr. Ward Robinson is a highly experienced research program developer and administrator whose skill in working with diverse stakeholders around a common theme is the key to the success of the BWRI.

Prior to assuming leadership of BWRI, she was the Director, Division of Medical and Scientific Affairs, Alzheimer's Association, a private health voluntary organization that supports national and international research projects and services for people. The breadth of experiences Dr. Ward Robinson brings in research program innovation and management, within the non-profit environment, are invaluable to the development and launch the BWRI. Additionally, she has substantial expertise and training in organizational psychology, the management of organizations, and the recruitment, training and retention of staff. She is media savvy and well known for effective communication skills, including serving as the co-producer for an award winning PBS documentary.

Dr. Ward Robinson received the Doctor of Philosophy degree from the University of Wisconsin-Madison in human development with an emphasis in industrial engineering; the Master of Science degree from Kansas State University; and the Bachelor of Sciences degree from the University of Houston-Clear Lake, where she was recently recognized with a Distinguished Alumni Award for her contributions to minority health. She served on the faculty of the Texas Tech University, and, therefore, understands the management of universities and requirements for the support of faculty research activities.

The passion driving all of her accomplishments is the improvement of the health of people. The provision of an adequate quantity of potable water is a basic human right and a matter of social justice. The Brita Water Research Institute is gratified that Dr. Ward Robinson is leading our efforts on behalf of all people worldwide.
